TOKYO, Nov. 23 (UP)—Here are some questions and answers explaining today's agreement on a plan for a ceasefire line in Korea:

Q. What was agreed upon? A. A formula for fixing a cease-fire line in Korea.

What It Means

Q. Who agreed upon it?

A. Sub-committees of truce negotiators from each side-Communist and United Nations. Q. What must be done next toward getting the cease fire line fixed?

A. The full truce delegations for both sides must approve the formula. This is expected to be mere formality.

Q. Will the fighting stop when the formula gets final A. The agreement says fighting will continue until a full

Q. What must be done before a full armistice agreement

A. The truce negotiators still must agree on how to en-force the armistice, make arrangements regarding prisoners of war, and make "recommendations to the governments of countries concerned on both sides."

Q. How long will it take to reach a full armistice A. The U.N. command hopes agreement on today's cease fire line formula will result in an armistice within 30 days after the cease-fire line is fixed. Q. Why should today's agreement speed things?

A. Because it specifies that the cease-fire line agreed upon today would be the final cease-fire line if a full armistice is agreed upon within 30 days.

Q. What if a full armistice isn't agreed upon in 30 days?

A. Then the cease-fire line would be revised to follow the battle line as it stands at the time a full armistice is agreed

Q. Where would the cease-fire line run under today's A. Along the present battle line.

The Split Personality

BEHIND THE OBVIOUS ECONOMIC problem of Britain lies a much deeper problem of politics, and it is unique. As the recent election showed, the nation is divided, with a difference of a few votes, evenly between two political par-ties but, more important and dangerous, between two theories of life. It is split down the middle on class lines.

Class division, of course, is familiar in all democratic countries but the British situation is unique in the fact that the division is not based on the ownership of wealth. As Mrs. Anne O'Hare McCormick, one of the ablest reporters of the day, observes in The New York Times, the people who vote for the Labor Party, by and large, are quite as well off as those who vote for the Conservatives. The labor union worker, indeed, is usually more prosperous than the Class division, of course, is familiar vatives. The labor union worker, indeed, is usually more prosperous than the middle class which is the core of the Conservative party. British society is far more egalitarian than that of the United States or Canada, money is more evenly distributed, the rich have drastically penalized for the sup-benefit of the poor.

Whether this increasing equality is good or bad is not the point here. The obvious and alarming fact is that Britain is now divided by an ideological gulf which is alien to all its political history. Willy-nilly, both the great political partie find themselves forced into a position where they seem to represent only half of the people and to be the enemy of the other half. As Mrs. McCormick puts it, each of the two segments is becoming too powerful for the other to govern. Thus the basic principle of British politics—government by a national party representing all classes—is being under-

No one knows that better than Mr. Churchill. His whole campaign before the recent election was conditioned by his alarm at the nation's schism. Where he could afford a bitter attack on social-ism in 1945 his recent tones were muted. He sought to avoid any utterance which would increase class antagonisms. He appealed again and again for a period of political trues.

His real problem, in short, is not the exchange deficit, the inflation left by the Labor government or even the nation's military defence. His real problem is to restore the nation's spiritual unity. Without that none of the other proble be solved.

In all this there is a clear lesson for Canada—the danger of bisecting the nation along the line of class and economic struggle, the necessity of maintaining political parties representing all classes and thus able to govern without breaking

Out Of Step With The Times

VICTORIA CITY POLICE MUTUAL Benefit Assn., by its boorish refusal to permit Canadians of Chinese racial background to attend its annual ball, has delivered a slap at one of the most worthy segments of our local population.

It is true that the organization is private one. As such it presumably as the legal right to solicit contributions from whomever it wishes. do not speak of legal rights in this con-nection. We speak of human rights, of the decencies and tolerances that should make this country a better one

It is noticeable through the world that the evil of racial intolerance rises most strongly among those least able to sup-port a claim to superiority. It is deplor-able that so fine a body of men as the city police force should have let itself become allied with so base a principle.

In a law enforcement group dedicated to justice and equality before the law, discrimination is particularly reprehensible. It is a negation of all that Cana-dian justice stands 46r, and members of the force cannot escape the criticism by protesting that they act as a private body rather than as a civic department. Their name contains the words Victoria City Police, and their act brings discredit on this community as well as on them-

The leaders of this group, whatever their private feelings, must remember their public responsibilities. Children of their public responsibilities. Children of today are taught to look upon the policeman as their friend and model. Shall this shoddy display of unchristian behavior be copied by them? Every resident of this, city should be assured of an equal right to protection and consideration from the public guardians of leviting the guardians of leviting the levit the leviting the leviting the leviting the leviting the leviting the leviting the ation from the public guardians of law and order. Can a Chinese feel this, knowing the sentiments with which some members of the force must regard him?

Local police have won respect and admiration from the majority of Victorians. The picture of the policeman as an enemy or buffoon of an earlier day has long since disappeared. Shall this hard-won respect now be lost through ill-considered policy?

Mayor George is to be commesded r his opinion and for the fact that in a similar case last year he circum-vented the prohibition by inviting a Chi-nese couple to attend the social function as his guests. Alderman Skillings is to be congratulated on his action in bringing the matter to public attention. It is to be hoped that both these civic leaders will continue their efforts to re move what constitutes a serious stigma on our police force, our community and our country.

Taxes And Prices

"IT SEEMS DIFFICULT TO BELIEVE." says a pamphlet issued by the British Labor party, "that higher taxes prevent prices from rising."

Yes, difficult. It is not believed by many Canadians, including the Conservative party in Parliament. They see only the obvious, first effect of taxes which increase the price of goods on which they are levied. They do not realize the second effect, which is to discourage the purchase of unnecessary things, to reduce the public's total demand for goods and thus to reduce the upward pressure on

The British Labor party is no friend of big/ business. It claims to be the champion of the small man, the ordinary purchaser of goods. But it concludes that high taxes are necessary to protect the small man from high prices. For, says the Labor party, "it is still true that the use of higher taxes and budget surpluses prevents inflation, preserves the value of ur money and prevents the cost of living

Thus the Labor party supports the clicy of the Canadian government, as Mr. St. Laurent pointed out in Parliament a few days ago.

Perhaps the most respected British aurernaps the most respected British au-thority in such matters is The London Economist, which agrees completely with the Labor party's pamphlet but disagreed with the Labor government because it did not sufficiently enforce its own the-ories. Says The Economist:

"The way to correct this failure in momic planning is plain enough. It is to remove the surplus purchasing power that made the buying spree possible. The known. They are higher interest rates and a larger budget surplus." And a budget surplus, of course, means high taxes. It means that the government must take in more money than it spends to reduce excessive purchasing power. That, precisely, is what the Canadian government is doing, against the Conservative party's cry of "over-taxation which is in fact, a demand for more in

New if purchasing power is to be held Now if purchasing power is to be held down by taxes, the income tax, essential as it is, cannot suffice. The income tax takes money out of the hands of the recipient before he can spend it. Since he can neither spend nor save this money he reaches the point where it is not worth his while to work harder and earn more. The incentive to production, the final cure for inflation, is lost, as it is largely lost in Britain already. As The Economist says, "if consump tion is to be cut by taxes, it must be by indirect taxes, which do not discourage men from working hard and which penalize spending, not saving. Such extra taxes cannot, of course, be confined to luxury goods; the revenues would be a trifling as that from a higher surtax. Adequate indirect taxes would have

Such is the policy of the Canadian government, so widely misunderstood and mistepresented. It has not cured infla-tion which is a world force outside Canada's control. But without such strong and unpopular policies the nation's af-fairs today would be much worse than they are. We would not only have inflation. We would have chaos.

Our Pioneers A Monument to

WITHIN THE NEXT FEW DAYS this community's interest in its earliest history and its appreciation for links with the past will be put to a practical test. The committee created to raise funds for the preservation and re-habilitation of the old Craigflower school and museum will make another appeal

A relatively small amount of money is required. The original objective was only $6,000, yet it was not reached in the previous campaign. That reflects scant credit on the people of Greater still standing in western Canada. It was completed in 1855. Within it many of pioneers received their education

Craigflower is the oldest schoolhouse

Surely here is an edifice that ought to be maintained as one tangible link in a chain of local history which should in spire pride. As a centre of interest for our own and future generations, as well as for the tourists who come to visit this part of the world, it deserves consideration.

Greater Victorians will shortly be invited to help to preserve this authentic reminder of a pioneering past. It is worth preserving. The response to the appeal should be speedy and generous.

Constructive Aid Proposal

"LIFE" MAGAZINE HAS STUDIED Britain's present economic crisis and has come up with a sane and constructive proposal to help the United States chief European ally. "Life" suggests that the U.S. make available to Britain the steel which that country urgently needs.

First, says the American publication, United States "could stop importing steel and iron ore from sources-notably Sweden—that are traditionally Britain's." Secondly, the United States "could guar-antee to send Britain enough of our own (U.S.) steel (especially sheet and plate)

Britain's own factories could turn that steel into arms and goods for export. While the net return—"Life" estimates it at $500 million next year—would not make Britain solvent, it would help.

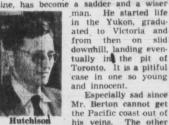

The transaction is not seen by the U.S. magazine as a dole, since Britain would pay, but as a friendly rescue effort to help a partner in need.

The scheme is thoughtful and far-sighted. Restoring Britain's strength is part of the United States' problem, too.

LOOSE ENDS

Pierre's Phantom By BRUCE HUTCHISON

good friend Pierre Berton, the brilliant virtuoso of Maclean's Maga zine, has become a sadder and a wise man. He started life in the Yukon, graduated to Victoria and from then on slid downfill, landing eventually in the pit of Toronto, It is a pitiful case in one so young case in one so young Especially sad since Mr. Berton cannot get Hutchison his veins. The other day he returned to Vancouver, where he once glittered in the effulgence of The Daily Sun, and wrote a heart-rending testament to that town. Now personally my heart is rent by the case of Mr. Berton but that, I dare say, is not a subject of wide public importance. My heart and Mr. Berton's probably will heal in time. The scar tissue will hide our The scar tissue will hide our joint grief. But the subject of Vancouver interests everybody and I fear that Mr. Berton, in an excess of coastal patriotism has greatly misrepresented it.

COMING back from the concrete jungles of Toronto, Mr. Berton finds Vancouver a dream city and he paints that dream with a lavish brush. Every-body in Vancouver, one gathers, is healthy, wealthy and wise. Everybody is bronzed with sunshine, wears flowers in the morning and skis on the North Shore mountains in the afternoon. Compared with the happy dwellers in this paradise Tennyson's lotus eaters were $A^{\rm LAS}$, this isn't quite true, not even in Victoria. Our lotus crop has failed alarmingly of late. But the magafailed alarmingly of late. But the magazine writer, especially if he is exiled in Toronto, can tell a complete untruth about Vancouver without a single in accuracy in detail. It all depends on your selection of exhibits, an old trick. Mr. Berton selects the right exhibits—the glittering city hall of Gerry McGeer, the mountains, the university campus, Marine Drive and that interesting local patriot, Mr. Sweeney, who wears sodden Palm Beach suits and straw hats all winter to prove that it never rains in Vancouver.

If Mr. Berton were not suffering from

If Mr. Berton were not suffering from an advanced state of nostalgia he could have selected other exhibits to give an impression equally inaccurate without the least inaccuracy in detail, Any maga-zine writer as able as he could take Vancouver's crime rate, its labor struggles, its slums a few yards from Gran-ville Street, its brassy tycoons and newly rich, and the sorry state of its politics to present a very depressing

WONDER, indeed, that Mr. Berton avoided this temptation for if he could have made Vancouver look bad enough he might have reconciled himself to Toronto. He is too good a Van-couverite for that. He avoids all the weeds and picks the lotus. Now I hardly need to point out to any intelligent man, even to Mr. Berton, that Victoria is an infinitely better city than Vancouver. That fact is well known to every student of Canadian civilization, Nevertheless, even Victoria could be made to look pretty dismal if one selected the wrong exhibits

I CAN imagine Mr. Berton or some other jaundiced eastern investigator coming here and writing something like this, quite accurately: "Victoria is basic-ally a tough town of sweating laborers." Over its famous Causeway at 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. the grimed workers of mill and factory crawl to and from their daily toil. Chilled and saturated by a hard climate, ground down by the labor of extracting a mere subsistence from these barren sea rocks, the workers crowd into liquor stores every night to buy a pitiful quart of relief from their narrow lives. Cramped on a tiny island, the mind of Victoria shrinks to such poverty that the least criticism of this starveling problem child among the cities of Canada is hitterly resented in letters to the press. An English visitor, writing to the Victoria Times to question the Canadian accent, is instantly slapped down by the angry local patroits in a series of letters to the editor which would be amusing if they were not so tragic in revealing the utter famine and quiet desperation of Victoria's intellect." And so on.

EVERY factual statement above is correct. All Mr. Berton's statements about Vancouver are equally accurate. It all depends upon selection and a few good adjectives and adverbs. Still, for all his skill in selection and craftsman ship, Mr. Berton unwittingly lets the cat out of the bag, allows the darker side of Vancouver's nature to emerge.

For by his own confession, when he was offered the big wages of Toronto, when he which he certainly earns, did Mr. Berton hesitate to leave the lotus land? No. he simultaneously took a last glance at the North Shore mountains and the job in

THAT is the trouble with Vancouver, as distinguished from Victoria. No Victorian ever takes a job in Toronto or anywhere else. So far as I know nobody who ever came to Victoria ever left it-except in the case of death or arrest. Toronto is full of Vancouverites who took the cash and let the lotus go. Don't weep on our shoulders, Mr. Berton. Vancouver isn't as good as all that. And even in Victoria, as I said, the lotus

Negotiation The Key

As Western strength grows, it does not mean that a peaceful world will come automatically. On the contrary, the danger of war may increase because of this growing strength, unless the West's expanding power is used to unless the negotiate a settlement. And if negotia-tion is to succeed, there must be a wil-lingness on both sides to settle differences. The essence of Mr. Pearson's and Mr. Eden's plea to the Russians was that the Soviet Union must demonstrate a more conciliatory mood if power blocs are not to harden and peace become more difficult to attain.

But as Mr. Eden said, "I do not be-lieve that in any dispute one party is 100 per cent a black villain, and the other 100 per cent snow white.... All men are fallible, and peace can only rest on mutual forbearance and restraint."

"Who else?"

She looked at me in alarm. "But, dear." she said, "you work for Hollywood now and again. If you send the colonel down there you may never get inside a studio gate again."

"Anything is better," I said, "than having him live here forever. Some day, before I die, I would like very much to get back into my own house, and if the get back into my own house, and if the colonel leaves it might be an incentive for Hamish and Anastasia Wiggs-Wiggs and Little Augie to follow."

My wife patted Little Augie's goat who is sharing the shed with us. "It would be nice," she admitted, "to sleep in my own bed again."

So the decision was made, and I walked over to the house. I entered by the kitchen door and squeezed my way through a barricade of ten-gallon stone crocks which were bubbling with Little Augie's latest batch of extra special pale home brew. Away off in the corner, by the stove, I caught a brief glimpse of Anastasia Wiggs-Wiggs cooking curry

There was a huge hole in the ceiling of the pantry, and as I passed through on my way to the living room, I saw Hamish peering down at me. I refused the temptation to ask Hamish about the hole in the ceiling and why he was up there. It is always better not to ask questions of Hamish.

I found the colonel in the living room, surrounded by Anastasia's stuffed animal heads. He was sitting on the chesterfield and he was sharpening his sabre with a nail-file.

"How would you like to go to Holly-wood, Colonel?" I asked.

"Boy," he said, "I like it here." "I mean, to advise a motion picture company—and get paid."

The sabre clattered to the floor. The colonel grabbed me by the arm. "Lad." he said. "repeat that. Anastasia has refused to give me an allowance for the past three weeks. I can't live on curry and rice forever. Tell me more, sahib." So I told him, and then I put a long distance call through to Hollywood. When I reached the producer who had written me, he said, "Just a minute, Sturdy," and I heard him calling for his secretary, his executive assistant and his lawyer to get on connecting phones and listen in. Nobody trusts anybody else in Hollywood, and especially over the

I didn't hear the conversation because at that moment there was a tremendous crash from the pantry, and I rushed in there to find that Hamish had fallen out of the hole in the ceiling.

"Just looking for termites," said Hamish, as he picked himself up. I stared up at the gaping hole and the cracked plaster, and it was a good thing for Hamish that the colonel's sabre was in the living room.

I went back there, and the colonel extended the phone and said: "Max

I stared at him and took the phone.

"He's wonderful! He's sensational!" a voice came back at me. "We're draw-ing up a contract now. Technical adviser, bah! I'm going to put him in the picture. With that voice! With that dialogue! Now listen, Sturdy, here's what I want you to do. We need a lot of re-writes. It is impossible to thank each one personally, which I would dearly like to, but I hope each person will take this as a sincere appreciation. PEACEABLE AND CLEAN

As a bystander viewing the parade of Jehovah's Witnesses I wondered just where I was at, when people started waving their fists and cursing at these Christian people as they drove peaceably through the streets with a police escort.

From their conduct these people seem to be the peacemakers in contrast with those who try to break up parades and such like.

I talked to some of the officials of the Sirocco Club and they said the Witnesses were the cleanest, most law-abid-ing people that have been in their build-

COMMONWEALTH BANK I suppose that now, as never before, is complete unity of the British Commonwealth essential if we are to preserve freedom in the world. Unity economic as well as spiritual.

In the Commonwealth there is an mense wealth of raw materials and potentialities of manufacture, etc., and yet we are told that the United Kingdom has to curtail its purchase from Canada, as it has not the magic dollar formula.

One apparently commonsense remedy would seem to be the formation of a Commonwealth Bank to finance all transactions between the Commonwealth This bank would have the effect of creating a Commonwealth currency (freeing all U.S. funds held by the Commonwealth nations for necessary trade with that country).

I am myself convinced that if a more definite unity economically as well as spiritual had been demonstrated by the Commonwealth, Iran and Egypt would not have ventured to "kick over the traces" as they are now attemptize to do, C. R. DOWNMAN.

SAYS AND DOES Mr. L. Brown's letter to the press says he believes what Stalin says. What Stalin says and what he does are as far apart as the poles.

Mr. Brown infers that there is no oppression and perfect freedom under Stalin and Co. Whereas we are oppressed with unemployment and fear of poverty, etc.—He does not mention the slave labor camps of Russia where thousand and even millions are being gradually exterminated by overwork, mainutrition and terrible conditions while struggling to keep alive.

He also does not mention the awful fear 90 per cent or more of the Russian people have that they will be pulled from their beds in the middle of the night and "shipped" to Siberia or salt and uranium mines without trial or a chance to say anything in protest.

Those who feel conditions in Russia or her satellites are better than here should take the first boat out of Victoria and try their luck under the N.K.V.D.

FRANK H. PARTRIDGE. 151 Beach Drive.

I want to ask our prospective candidates for civic office to declare how they stand on abolishing this unfair tax. After a long and bitter struggle poll tax has been abolished in Vancouver as it has in many other Canadian cities, only because it is recognized to be vastly unfair. Room rents have been raised on account of increased city taxes. As well, there is the new high rate of tax on each room rented levied by the city.

These burdens are, of course, passed on to the unfortunate tenants of rented rooms who are far from the richer of our citizens; many of them are very poor indeed. Whole classes of persons are exempt. People who move frequently pay nothing.

Let us have a plebiscite on this unfair impost which is keenly resented by the negroes of Alabama and the far south. I hope they have won their fight we haven't!

Poll taxpayers have votes, let them use their votes to some effect. Will somebody who is free and has the time to take up this matter put the question to each candidate?

JOHN KENNY.

By BRIAN TOBIN "I SEE," said the Elevator Man, "where the Hollywood photographers are picking a composite beauty again. They are putting together this nose and that mouth and somebody else's hair. They take another actress's arms and another's arms and another's legs, hitch everything still another torso and call it the perfect beauty. Well, that's one way to do it, I guess. But it's just as well they can't really assemble the parts like that, because chances are the result wouldn't be what they expected. The perfect eyes wo necessarily fit the perfect nose. expected perfect mouth mightn't jibe with the perfect chin, because the face it was picked from helped it to look the way it did. In some other environment, it might look quite different. On the same principle, you could pick ten—or is it eight—perfect men for a city council but taken together they might make a mighty poor board to run the city. Going

"Transplanting," said the Elevator Man, "does strange things to facial feat-ures and people, too. The cowboy the storybook heiress falls in love with on the dude ranch looks a lot different back home on Park Avenue. The smartly-uniformed overseas soldier must look a little different to the war bride when they get back to the home town and he climbs once more into his garage overalls. And the hat that looked so inderful in the modiste's window often looks a lot different on milady's head. Mezzanine!

"Speaking," said the Elevator Man, "of points of feminine beauty, reminds me of that story about the actress. She to be just what the producer wanted for the heroine. 'That's excel-lent,' he told her, 'right face, right colright voice, everything right for the part. By the way, what salary were you expecting? "Two hundred, she said with a smile. "Sorry," said the producer hurriedly, 'you're too tall.' "

Of course, such a border should be reasonably wide, say five feet, to allow the cultivation of as many choice subjects as possible. All too often this valuable space is wasted because a path is located within one or two feet of the wall. Much consideration must be given the house itself. Possibly it would be improved in appearance by being veiled with climb-ing plants. On the other hand, its architectural features may be so striking that it would be unpardonable to cover them. Generally, however, the age house on which climbing shrubs throw shadows of leaf and flower gains in attractive-ness by their presence.

The material used in the construction of the house is another factor. The harsh lines of English brick are ameliorated by climbing plants, but such sub-jects would soon deterioate a house of wooden siding.

The wooden house requires painting at regular intervals, which means the removal of climbing plants, trying the forti-tude of the gardener and the

UPCOMING HEAVIES IN RING SHOWPIECE TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (CP).-Bulky Bob Baker of Pittsburgh was rated a 9,to-5 choice to whip Clarence Henry in Madison Square Garden tonight and earn a shot at the former heavyweight champion, Ezzard Charles.

This is the showpiece for both boys. They've been climbing steadily up the ladder. Henry, with a 28-total record, is right behind Baker.

A crowd of 7,000 or 8,000 probably will watch them in the Garden, but other fans will eye their clash via NBC's network telecast. ABC will handle the broadcast. The 10-rounder starts at 10 p.m., E.S.T.
"This is it," said Baker. "This is my big chance. Make a hit in New York and on TV and you're in the dough. I guess Henry feels the same way. It will be blood and guts in there."

Henry is fully aware of the importance of the bout to Yeah, this is the big one," said the Los Angeles negro, "and Baker is a big guy.

Lee No Traitor, Just Average Grid Fan

Sports Editor; Victoria Daily Times, Victoria, B.C.

For a journalist of your acknowledged standing your slanderous attack upon my character and—more importantly—upon my business reputation, is as unforgivable as it is reprehensible. Gad, sir, if I were given the choice of weapons and you weren't I would challenge you immediately to a duel.

Your ungentlemanly observations carried in your column, "It's My View," of Thursday last, in which you stated (I quote) "Staffer Philip Lee—avid Canadian football fan who once called Winnipeg home has furned traitor and is picking Ottawa Roughriders to whip Regina in the Grey Cup final. He'll take all bets." shows only your utter misunderstanding of Canada's greatest sports spectacle, and worse, your un-called-for observations have made it almost impossible for me to secure wagers at anything like the favorable odds I was receiving before the advent of your scurrilous attack.

Without further ado, therefore, I unhesitatingly charge you and your sportswriting ilk here in Victoria, because of your lack of publicity to the great Canadian autumn pastime, guilty of defrauding the worthy peoples of Vancouver Island

For your information, sir, during the past week, in the villages, hamlets and outposts of our great country e near-east (called the west by the rest of Canada), and to the east, wherever two or more can gather, the talk is who will win the Grey Cup to the exclusion of all else. Stenographers, bank clerks, doctors, plumbers, nurses, truckers, teachers and cabinet ministers, the elderly, the young, have all been eating and dreaming Grey Cup. During the traditional Grey Cup week all work ceases. Canada becomes a nation obsessed.

And finally, sir, the great day arrives. Saturday, in Toronto, the great east meets the great Canadian west. There will be parades, floats and bands. The rivalry will be high but the feeling excellent. It is Canada exerting herself. Through Canadian football Canada has done more for herself toward national unity than through any other single peacetime agency since Confederation. Grey Cup day has become

If one is a westerner and adjudges the eastern team to be the superior (or vice versa) then it is quite permissable for him to punt for the opposition heart and soul for his half so long as he cheers with heart and soul for his half of Canada throughout the contest.

United Set For Crucial Match

Victoria United will play its final game in the first-half schedule of the Coast Soccer League next Saturday when it meets St. Andrews at Royal Athletic Park and an important game it is, too.

Ian Holroyd and Ken Barnes, who have been playing juvenile soccer so far this season, will be uniform along with Jack Strachen of Navy for relief duty.

If United loses Saturday, North Shore will win the first-half tftle, but if they down St. Andrews, the Reds will have to win at least one of their two remaining games to take the honors. McNEIL OUT?

Word from Vancouver Thursday had it that St. Andrew man-ager Tom McNeil would resign before the week end.

McNeil wouldn't confirm the resignation, but indicated that there were too many fingers in the pie for his liking Game time Saturday is 2.30.

Failure Seen For Truman Vatican Post

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (UP)
—Some administration officials are conceding privately today that President Truman will fail to win Senate approval for his nomination of Gen. Mark W. Clark to be American ampassador. Clark to be American ambassador the Vatican.

The expectation is that Clark's nomination will be side-tracked somehow by the Senate foreign relations committee headed by Sen. Tom Connally (O. Tex.) who is not pleased with the nomination.

Connally, who is up for reelection in Texas next year, is one lawmaker who can speak out against Clark without getting into a religious controversy. This traces to Clark's record World War leadership of the 36th Division, made up largely of Texans, which suffered heavy casualties during the ill-fated Rapido River crossing in Italy.

Connally has promised full hearings on the Clark nomination. This is regarded by some of Mr. Truman's advisers as a threat to draw out the hearings of the Rapido River issue.

The Senate committee could vote for Clark's nomination and recommend Senate approval. This is regarded is unlikely, primarily because of the elections and the fact that many lawmakers don't want the Clark-Vatican issue to plague them in their campaigns.

Political experts believe that the committee, after extensive hearings, will vote not to report Clark's nomination for Senate action or decide to send it to the Senate floor with an unfavorable recommendation.

It was reported from Seattle this week that in October 54,000 tons of iron ore were shipped to Japan from the Vancouver Island deposits at Quinsam Lake. It was also reported from the same source that negotiations were proceeding for the sale of ore from the Texada Island deposits to the same source.

Not many radio programs will stand the severe test of simply being read as a script, without benefit of the dressing a broadcast lends. This recently happened to Ian Docherty's Collector's Items heard Sunday night at 10.30 on CBR, and the result was ronto's Varsity Stadium. The game broadcast be-ins at 9.45 with airing of pre-game ceremonies at a unanimous round of approval. It seems the ladies of the Musical Club in Trail wanted to open their winter series with a meeting that was different. Well, it was. Ian Docheryt, at records but complete continuity to go with them, in the same inimitable style that he uses on his , the beauty of her voice program. The result was an unbroadcast edition of Collector's Items with a "ghost" voice at the helm.

The singing of Come Where My Love Lies aming, by the Columbia Quartet recently. Dreaming, by brought memories to one listener of the days beyond the turn of the century.

"At the first notes," writes a New Westminster man. "I am back 54 years ago and see a young girl in a white dress—and a blue sash—and heard her sing before a crowded concert hall that song. 'The girl had a remarkable voice-more so as she was 14 years—myself being "the boy of the moment" a year older. Even at that age one realized

"Just after heard her singing—the girl who was on a visit to a relative returned to her home-and never from that to this heard of her.

"Hearing the song that is 'always hers' and go back and have a very vivid impression of the girl and her song-after all 54 years is a long time to hold a memory."

The appeal arose when the Minister of National Revenue ruled that the company must pay excess profits tax amount-ing to $27,723, which, together with interest, amounted to $30, 000 for the year 1947.

The appeal was argued by J. G. Ruttan, assisted by F. J. Cross of Ottawa, representing the Minister of National Revenue. D. M. Gordon, K.C., appeared for Manning Timber Products Ltd.

The company claimed it was not liable for tax as it had only been in existence for one year and companies in such a position are exempt for excess profits tax for the first year's opera-

Ruttan argued that this exemption only applied to new companies which are not carry-ing on a business formerly car-ried on by another company of which they are a successor. If they were carrying on the same business, the lawyer claimed, the company would have to show that the same persons were not "substantially interested" in both the old and new company, before claiming exemption. The evidence at the hearing showed that F. A. E. Manning and his wife held all but one share of the Manning Lumber Mills Ltd., and held 49 per cent of the voting common stock in of the voting common the new company, Manning Timber Prodects Ltd.

An appeal of the Manning per cent interest was not sub- jority-more than 50 per cent Timber Products Limited against payment of excess profits Act, a substantial interest ings were sufficient to constitute
